Cecilia Moscatelli

Submitted by Craig Cook

Cecilia Moscatelli is my selection for the 2025–2026 Outstanding Student of the Year in the American Ethnic Studies department. As a student in my Honors Immigration History course, she has demonstrated exceptional academic excellence, consistently producing insightful and well-researched work. Equally impressive is her thoughtful and engaged participation in class discussions and lectures, where she elevates conversations with depth and curiosity. Cecilia brings a distinctive and meaningful perspective as an international student who aspires to permanently immigrate to the United States. Her personal connection to the subject matter enriches the learning environment and exemplifies the spirit of critical inquiry and global awareness that defines our department.
